The screenshot shows a web browser at the URL `dev.modern.ie/tools/vms/linux/`. The page has a navigation bar with four tabs: "Web platform" (Learn about Microsoft Edge), "News & community" (Connect with the team), "Tools" (Test and debug your site), and "Demos" (Get inspired). The main content area is titled "Test Microsoft Edge and versions of IE6 through IE11 using free virtual machines you download and manage locally." Below this, there are three buttons for "Choose your OS": "Windows", "Mac", and "Linux". Under "Virtual machine", a dropdown menu is set to "Microsoft Edge on Win10". Under "Select platform", a dropdown menu is set to "VirtualBox". A large purple box on the right contains the following text: "Your Virtual Machine Single File", "Known issues: Windows 10 virtual machines may display a message in the Settings app that reads 'Connect to the Internet to activate.' This is due to a bug and does not impact the activation state or functionality of the virtual machine.", "Please note that these virtual machines expire after 90 days. We recommend setting a snapshot when you first install the virtual machine which you can roll back to later.", "Build number:20150801", a "Download .zip" button, a "View installation instructions" link, and a "Switch to multi-part download" link. At the bottom of the page, there is a small note: "The Microsoft Software License Terms for the IE VMs are included in the release notes and supersede any conflicting Windows license terms included".
